
Chicago Tribune—Aug. 4, 2007
Article featuring Scott Clark, PhD, Department of Environmental Health
Brightly colored children's bracelets and necklaces line the display case of a Chinese manufacturer in this factory town. Adorned with mini school buses, sandals and other charms, the jewelry sits ready to be sold to foreign and domestic buyers. It also contains lead.